Consent to Automated Calls and Text Messages Policy

Employee Handbook excerpt, verbatim

During employment, the Company may want to communicate with employees relating to their job via automated and/or prerecorded telephone calls and/or text messages. By accepting and maintaining employment with the Company, employees consent to receiving automated and/or prerecorded calls and/or text messages at any number provided to the Company. The consent extends to receiving such communications sent from the Company and any Company employees, agents or vendors who are authorized to call and send text messages on behalf of the Company. Message frequency varies. Message and data rates may apply.

To ensure the Company has current information on file, employees are required to promptly notify the Company of any change in telephone number(s).

Employees have the right to revoke consent at any time by emailing your Manager, Supervisor, HR, or Owner and stating the employee’s wish to revoke consent to receiving automated calls or texts on their personal mobile telephone.

Consent to receive automated calls and text messages is not a condition of employment. If an employee opts out of receiving prerecorded or autodialed telephone calls or text messages, the Company may not be able to communicate with them about important company and employment-related information both for emergency and non-emergency situations.
